QUESTIONS PRESENTED

Whether the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia properly interpreted FRAP 34 (a) (2), contrary to the view of the other circuits, that it is not required to review the record in summary disposition of cases under Title VII the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1991?

Whether a Title VII plaintiff, within the D.C. Circuit, is not entitled to a trial, de novo, in the U.S. District Court and an opportunity for full discovery as required by the U.S. Supreme Court in Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly; Celotex Corp. v. Catrett; and Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, while that right to full discovery is still available in Title VII actions in the other federal circuits?

Whether the D.C. circuit court's holding that Section 1981 of the Civil Rights Act 1991 does not apply to federal employees, conflicts with the Congressional purpose for enhanced penalties for "intentional discrimination" and workplace harassment?

Whether the D.C. Circuit errered by failing to apply a de novo standard of view for each of the issues raised by the plaintiff, including the right to a de novo review, in the District Court, and the right to full discovery, to prove "intentional" discrimination meriting enhance penalties as provided by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1991?

Whether the District Court abused its discretion in denying Plaintiff's Motion to Stay Ruling on Defendants Motion for Summary Judgment Pending Plaintiff's Request for Discovery?

PARTIES TO THE PROCEEDING

Benoit Brookens, a former international economist at the U.S. Department of Labor, is the plaintiff in this Title VII action under the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended.

Hilda Solis, the successor to Elaine Chao as the Secretary of Labor, is the defendant.

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari

Petitioner respectfully prays that a writ of certiorari issue to review the final judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

Opinion and Judgment Below

The District Court's opinion is reported as Brookens v. Solis, 635 F. Supp. 2d 1 (D.D.C. 2009) and reprinted in Appendix A-5. The court of Appeals unpublished order is not officially reported and reprinted in Petitioner's Appendix, A-3.

Statement of Jurisdiction

The District Court has jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. Art. 1331. The Court of Appeals issued its judgment on July 13, 2009. This Court has jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. Art. 1254(1).

Statutory and Constitutional Provisions Involved

Relevant provision of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 is provided in the Appendix at A-18.

Section 1981, as amended by the Civil Rights Act of 1991, is provided in the Appendix at A-18.

28 U.S.C. 1291 provides for de novo judicial review in the U.S. Court of Appeals. The section is provided in the Appendix at A-19.

Statement of the Case

Congress, via the Civil Rights Act of 1991, amended the Civil Rights act of 1964 to provide enhanced penalties for violations of the statute for acts which were proven before a jury to constitute "intentional" discrimination.

Pursuant to this statute, Benoit Brookens filed a required civil action, to exhaust his judicial remedies, for alleged intentional discrimination in the award of promotions in vacancies, promotions through desk audits, and details to training assignments leading to promotions.

Mr. Brookens' complaint cited, the reasons the agency provided for its actions—and challenged their factual veracity. In lieu of an Answer to the Complaint, DOL filed a motion to Dismiss and in the Alternative for Summary Judgment under FRCP 12(b)(6).

The district court granted summary judgment ruling that in view of the agency's cited reasons for its actions, it need not provide a de novo hearing to the plaintiff, complete the burden of proof shifting analysis provided under McDonnell Douglass, nor provide the plaintiff discover pursuant to Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombley,;

The D.C. Circuit, on the Agency's motion for summary affirmance, without any review of the record, affirmed. The D.C. Circuit, en banc, affirmed the panel decision, from which the former employee petition for certiorari.

The district court did not require the defendant to file an Answer to the Complaint. A period for discovery was not provided for by the district court which decided the agency's motion for summary judgment finding that the plaintiff failed to e.g. "failed to rebut the legitimate reasons defendant has proffered for denial of the details and the December 2007 desk audit." The court citied Mr. Schoepfle's statement that there was "no detail opportunity" (Decision, p. 13). The record, to the contrary, to be decided by the jury is whether a detail opportunity, in this instance was available to "other employees", but "not to Mr. Brookens." With these, and all the identified issues in the Plaintiff's Complaint, the district court found in favor of summary judgment in favor of the defendant agency.

The court ruled that it "granted the defendant's motion to dismiss complaint, or in the alternative for summary judgment and will deny plaintiff's motion to stay."

Mr. Brookens filed an appeal, and prior to receipt of the record, the pleadings, or any documentary evidence, in the case, the D.C. Circuit granted the U.S. Department of Labor's motion to Summarily Affirm the decision of the District Court. A panel of the Court of Appeals ruled that "the merits of the parties' positions are so clear as to warrant summary action. (Decision, December 9, 2009) (Appendix, A-5).

The Court of Appeal, en banc, on July 13, 2009, affirmed. (Appendix, A-2)

The Record Below

The Circuit's record does not show any Answer to the Complaint. The Circuit record does not show and discovery implemented by the parties, and the District Court relying on the record and the MSPB, when the statute provides for a de novo review in the U.S. District Court. The Circuit decision does not reflect, any de novo review of and of the findings the circuit used to affirm the finding of the district court, in contravention of the required review delegate to the Circuit as provided by the authorizing statute, and Congressional intentions.

Reasons for Granting the Petition

The D.C. Circuit's "Summary Affirmance" procedures, applied to civil actions Under Title VII, of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, unlike the other circuits, the D.C. Circuit does not provide for a decision, upon a review of the record which is required to include a de novo review in the district court and an opportunity for full discovery by the parties in the trial court.

The D.C. Circuit's standard for summary disposition creates a grossly divergent and lenient criteria for disposition of civil rights, Title VII discrimination and reprisal actions than that applied by the other circuits.

Parties, in Title VII actions of the Civil Rights act of 1964, are provided, by statute, a de novo hearing, in discrimination cases before the U.S. District Court. The Court of Appeals, upon petition, by either party, of summary judgment dispositions, takes a de novo review of the district court's decision, 28 U.S.C. 1291, and the criteria for the summary judgment in favor of a party. Failure to properly apply the judicial standard in a timely fashion, may relegate the relieve and benefits beyond the usefulness for the plaintiff[1].

The D.C. Circuit's Interpretations of FRAP 34, Oral Argument, conflicts with the reading of the other federal circuits, to not require a record for review.

FRAP 34(a)(2) Standards, provides the following:

Oral argument must be allowed in every case unless a panel of three judges who have examined the briefs and record unanimously agrees that oral argument in unnecessary for any of the following reasons:

[1] Gaines v. Canada, 305 US 337, (S.C. Nov. 9, 1938), "A Quiet Hero of Civil Rights History, Vanished in 1939—NYTimes.com", "A Supreme Triumph, Then Into the Shadows," by David Stout, July 12, 2009, www.nytimes.com/2009/07/09us/12gaines.html]" In 2006, Mr. Gaines was posthumously admitted to the University of Missouri Law School and the Missouri Bar. The U.S. Supreme Court granted review of the Missouri Supreme Court decision which held that Mr. Gaines failed to exhaust his administrative remedies.

(A) the appeal is frivolous;
(B) the dispositive issues or issues has been authoritatively decided; or
(C) the facts and legal arguments are adequately presented in the briefs and record and the decisional would not be significantly aided by oral argument.

Within the past ten (10)[2] years, none of the other Federal Circuit Courts of Appeals have applied this rule to any Title VII cases under the Civil Rights Act of 1964. When the other circuits, except of the D.C. circuit applied FRAP 34 to dispense with oral argument, the parties were still provided the opportunity to provide briefs on the issues on appeal and an opportunity to present relevant portions of the trial court record.

The D.C. Circuit's view of FRAP 34(a(2) however, in this case, failed to provide for a review of any record, or provide a brief on the issues in contention.

The issues, identified in this petition, were presented to the court of appeals. However, that court's decisions, by the panel, nor en banc, identifies or cites any of the arguments—or the evidence, in its decisions, for review by this court.

The review of those issues, thusly, is now requested before this court on certiorari.

[2] The LexisOne Community Service coverage is comprehensive for this period.

The Court of Appeals, without a cursory examination of the record, as reflected in its decision, A-3, summarily affirmed the decision of the district court, A-5—without any regard to the issues the petitioner desired considered for review. The District Court, Opinion p. 4, held that the plaintiff did not raise the issue of race discrimination before the Merit System's Protection Board, (MSPB) (Decision, p. 4, Footnote 6) when the record provides otherwise.

The District Court, (Decision, p. 5) citied that in assessing Defendant's motion to dismiss pursuant FRCP 12(b)(6) dismissal for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted—by review of the face of the pleadings—and whether enough facts have been plead to provide relief. Bell Atlantic v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). The allegations, at that point are presumed true.

The trial court then relied of the plaintiff's complaint, which outlined the defendant's stated reasons for its actions. The District Court (Decision, p. 9) then applied the alleged facts in the plaintiff's Complaint to find that "summary judgment should be entered because plaintiff have failed to rebut defendant's legitimate, non-discriminatory reasons for these denials." The court then summarized that the applicable standard is whether the "plaintiff has produced sufficient evidence for a reasonable jury to find that the employer's asserted non-discriminatory reason was not the actual reason and that the employer intentionally discriminated against [the plaintiff]. Jones v. Bernanke, 557 F. 3d 670, 678 (D.C.

Cir. 2009) (applying same principal to retaliation claims).

Generally, the evidence, documents, and witnesses, generally are in the hands of the defendant. That recognition was provided by the district court.

"While summary judgment ordinarily 'is proper only after the plaintiff has been given adequate time for discovery," the district court wrote, [decision, Brookens, I, p. 10] "First Chicago Int'l v. United Exch. Co., 836 F.2d 1375,(1380)(D.C. Cir 1988) the information Brookens seeks through discovery is simply not necessary to decide this case."

Brookens provided to the district court, exhibit 4, [A-22] for example, an action by another federal agency, "The Executive Office of the President," certifying Mr. Brookens as eligible for a GS-14 vacancy, consistent with the relief requested in the complaint from DOL. This evidence—previously available to the trial court record-- was not reviewed nor considered by the D.C. Circuit.

In the pending arbitration regarding whether the Labor Department took retaliatory action againt Mr. Brookens, Mr. Schoepfle's testimony contradicts statements filed before the District Court, Brookens, II, as to the identify of the selecting official for the challenged vacancies.

The Labor Department provided witeness statements relied upon by the District Court, Mr. Brookens did not have the opportunity—as is the case post discovery--to have challenged their veracity or accuracy.

FRCP 12(b) provides for an Answer to the complaint, providing for "every defense, in law or fact." The Labor Department--did not file and answer to the Complaint. The agency was not required to respond to each of the allegation of the complaint, via an admission or denial, and to provide any other defenses it had to Mr. Brookens civil action by way of rule 12(b) subparagraphs, 1-6.

The Court of Appeals—did not consider Mr. Brookens' formulation of this or any other of the issues Mr. Brookens raised in the appeal. Whether the appellant—is represented (Brookens, I)—or unrepresented—at any stage of the administrative or judicial process, the petitioner must be entitled to present to the appeals court his formulation of the factual and legal errors in any of the proceeding's below.

It is the law that "reasonable opportunity" includes the opportunity to 'pursue reasonable discovery." See e.g. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 317, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 2552-53, 91 L.Ed.2d 202(1986); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc.,477 U.S. 242, 106 S. Ct. 2514, 91 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986) (plaintiff must have "a full opportunity to conduct discovery"); In First Chicago International, relied upon by the district court, (Brookens, I) we find an enunciation of the principals required of all U.S. courts:

> More fundamentally, under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, when a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss is converted into a motion for summary judgment, all parties must be given a "reasonable opportunity" to present all material pertinent to such a motion by Rule 56.

Amended Section 1981 Provides Enhanced Federal Employee Protections for "Intentional Discrimination."

Finally, the D.C. circuit decision, on the application of 42 U.S.C. Art. 1981, is contrary to Burke v. Gould, Chairman, National Labor Relations Board, 286 F. 3d 513, (D.C. Circuit 2002), The City of Milwaukee v. Saxbe, 546 F.2d 693, (1976), and amendment for "intentional discrimination and unlawful harassment in the workplace" and to "conform statutory authority and provide guidelines for adjudication of disparate impact suits." to the Civil Rights Act of 1991, as passed by Congress.

For these reasons, the court is requested to grant certiorari for this petition, or in the alternative, the Court is requested to invite the Solicitor to respond to this Petition.

Respectfully submitted,

Benoit Brookens

v.

Hilda L. Solis, Secretary, U.S. Department of Labor,

Appellee

BEFORE: Garland, Brown, and Kavanaugh, Circuit Judges

ORDER

Upon consideration of the motion for summary affirmance, the opposition thereto, and the reply, it is ORDERED that the motion be granted. The merits of the parties' positions are so clear as to warrant summary action. See Taxpayers Watchdog, Inc. v. Stanley, 819F.2d 294, 297 (D.C. Cir. 1987) (per curiam). Appellee has offered legitimate nondiscriminatory and nonretaliatory reasons for the failure to promote appellant and for the denial of appellant's request for desk audits, work details, and a within grade increase. Appellant has failed to produce evidence sufficient for a reasonable jury to find that those asserted non-discriminatory reasons were not the actual reasons, and that the appellee intentionally discriminated or retaliated against him. See Kersey v. WMATA, No. 08-7040 (D.C. Cir. Nov. 10,2009); Jones v. Bernanke, 557 F.3d 670, 678 (D.C. Cir. 2009); Brady v. Office of the Sergeant at Arms, U.S. House of Representatives, 520 F.3d 490, 494 (D.C. Cir. 2008). The district court did not abuse its discretion in denying appellant's request for discovery, because that request lacked the requisite specificity. See Messina v. Krakower, 439 F.3d 755, 762 (D.C. Cir .. 2006).

Finally, as the district court correctly observed, 42 U.S.C. § 1981 does not apply to actions against the United States. See 42 U.S.C. § 1981 (c); Houri v. United States,782 F.2d 227, 245 n.43 (D.C. Cir. 1986), vacated on other grounds, 482 U.S. 64 (1987).

STATEMENT OF ISSUES, CERTIFICATE OF PARTIES, AND RELATED CASES

Statement of Issues to be Raised

Whether the District Court, citing Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombley, 550 U.S. 544 (2007), applied the proper standard for pleading facts in discrimination cases under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1991, (Title VII) in dismissing the claims relating to the denials of the desk audits and details of the plaintiff's complaint, rather than relying on Swierkiewicz v. Sorema N.A., 534 U.S. 506 (2002)?

Whether the District Court erred in failing to stay a ruling on the summary judgment portion of the defendant's motion to dismiss pursuant to FRCP 56(f) to provide the non-moving party, under FRCP (56(c), adequate time for discovery as required by Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, Administratrix of the Estate of Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986)?

Whether the District Court erred in granting summary judgment on all claims in plaintiff's complaint?

Whether the District Court erroneously factually characterized plaintiff's request for discovery as "additional" discovery, Decision, p. 21, citing Messina v. Krakower, 439 F.3d 755, 762 (D.C. Cir. 2006) when no discovery at all was conducted by any of the parties in the case?

Whether the District Court abused its discretion in denying any discovery in this case?

Whether the trial court applied an erroneous standard in ruling, in denying a trial de novo, as required by Chandler v. Roudebush, 425 U.S. 861, 48 L.Ed.2d 416, 96 S. Ct. 1949, 1959-60, (1976), that the issues were "fully litigated before the MSPB [Merit Systems Protection Board] where plaintiff and defendant, both of whom were represented by counsel, introduced evidence"?

Whether the District Court erred in ruling that "unresolved factual discrepancies" [Decision p. 20, footnote 16], certificate of eligibles, the selection of Anne Zollner and the promotion of Tim Wedding were irrelevant?

Whether the district court failed to properly apply Burlington Industries, Inc. v. Elbert, 524 U.S. 742, 761-62 (1998) in ruling that the plaintiff 's allegation of "denial of desk audits" (for promotion) and details (with automatic pay increases after 30 days) and promotion potential failed to constitute "adverse employment action" under Title VII?

Whether the district court erred in dismissing "all claims relating to the denials of the desk audits and details and to summary judgment on all claims" in plaintiff's complaint (Decision p. 11)?

Whether the District Court erred in ruling that a federal employee could not bring a cause of action under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, Section 1981, as amended in 1991, when The City of Milwaukee v. Saxbe, 546 F.2d 693 (Cir.)(1976) holds to the contrary?

Plaintiff, believing that he was qualified, initiated a formal complaint, but the vacancy announcement was cancelled in May 2007. (Id. paras. 33-34.) Around the same time, plaintiff requested a second detail to the position and a desk audit, both of which were denied.[4] (Id. paras. 35-36.) In July 2007, defendant re-posted the [4]According to defendant, "[desk audits are reviews of an employee's current responsibilities to determine whether an employee is actually performing responsibilities at a grade level higher than the current classification," (Declaration of Gregory K. Schoepfe [Schoepfle Decl.] para. 9.)

position for Chief of the Trade Policy and Negotiations Division in vacancy announcement ILAB 07-157*DE/M* and listed additionalqualifications that had not been included in the prior vacancy announcement. (Id. paras. 37-38.) Plaintiff was again determined to be unqualified for the position. (See First Witt Decl. para. 15(d),) Instead, Timothy Wedding, a white male whom plaintiff claims was less qualified in the area of trade and policy negotiations and needed training by plaintiff and others to perform the duties of the position, was selected for the vacancy. (Compl. paras. 41-42.) In August 2007, prior to Mr. Wedding's appointment, plaintiffs request for a detail as Acting Chief of the Trade Policy and Negotiations Division was denied. (Id. para. 24(c).) Plaintiff then filed a formal administrative complaint alleging race and age discrimination and reprisal based on the DOL's determinations that he was unqualified for the twice-advertised ILAB vacancy and the denial of his requests for details to that position and a desk audit.[5] (Id. para. 43; Declaration of Naomi Barry-Perez [Barry-Perez Decl.] Attach. 1.)

In December 2007, Mr. Wedding, who by that time had been appointed Chief of the Trade Policy and Negotiations Division, denied plaintiffs request for a desk audit and a WGI. (Compl. paras. 24(e), 46.) Plaintiff thereafter requested reconsideration of the denial of his WGI,

[5] According to defendant, this administrative action was dismissed after plaintiff filed the instant lawsuit. (Motion to Dismiss or for Summ. J. at 19.)

which was denied. (See Schoepfle Decl. para. 11; Def.'s Ex. A, Brookens v. Dept of Labor, MSPB No. DC-531 D-08-0302-1-1, at 3 (May 1, 2008).) In March 2008, plaintiff filed a formal administrative complaint of discrimination regarding the December 2007 denials of a desk audit and WGI. Both claims were dismissed as untimely, and the WGI claim was also dismissed because plaintiff had elected to file an appeal with the Merit Systems Protection Board ("MSPB"). (Compl, para. 51; Barry-Perez Decl. para. 4.) The MSPB affirmed the DOL's decision to deny plaintiffs WGI and also found that plaintiff had failed to support his allegations of age discrimination and reprisal, and thereafter, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission ("EEOC") upheld the finding of no discrimination.[6] (Def.'s Ex. A, Brookens v. Dep't of Labor, MSPB No. DC-531 D-08-0302-1-1 (May 1, 2008)); Brookens v. Chao, No. 0320080075, 2008 WL 4107416 (B.E.O.C. Aug. 19, 2008).

In this case, in addition to alleging that these actions constituted age and race discrimination, plaintiff also alleges that defendant's actions were in retaliation for his having filed complaints with the EEOC, the MSPB, and this Court[7] (See Com pl. paras. 18-25.)

[6]Plaintiff did not allege race discrimination before the MSPB.

[7]In his complaint, which was filed on September 19, 2008, plaintiff also alleges that defendant issued a proposal on September 5, 2008, to remove him from federal service in retaliation for his prior EEO activity. (Compl, ~ 23.) However,

Before the Court are defendant's motion to dismiss the complaint or in the alternative for summary judgment, plaintiff's opposition, and defendant's reply, as well as plaintiff's motion to stay the Court's ruling on defendant's summary judgment motion pending completion of discovery.

defendant's opposition, and plaintiffs reply. The issues before the Court, listed in the order in which they will be addressed, are as follows:

(1) whether the DOL discriminated against plaintiff based on his race and/or age or retaliated against him based on his prior EEO activity when the agency denied his requests for details in March, May, and August 2007 and his requests for desk audits in May and December 2007;

(2) whether the DOL discriminated against plaintiff based on his race and/or age or retaliated against him based on his prior EEO activity when the

agency failed to select him for the position of Chief of the Trade Policy and Negotiation Division in response to vacancy announcement ILAB 07-068DE/M or ILAB 07-157 DE/M; and

I. LEGAL STANDARDS

A. Motion to Dismiss

A case must be dismissed pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted if the complaint does not plead "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face." Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). The allegations in plaintiff's complaint are presumed true at this stage and all reasonable factual inferences must be construed in plaintiffs favor. Maljack Prods., Inc. v, Motion Picture Ass'n of Am., Inc., 52 F.3d 373, 375 (D.C. Cir, 1995). However, "the court need not accept inferences drawn by plaintiff if such inferences are unsupported by the facts set out in the complaint. Nor must the court accept legal conclusions cast in the form of factual allegations." Kowal v. MCI Commc'ns Corp., 16F.3d 1271, 1276 (D.C. Cir. 1994). To survive a motion to dismiss, the factual allegations in the complaint "must be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level." Twombly, 550 U.S, at 555. In this case, plaintiff is proceeding pro se. The Court is therefore mindful that "complaints or motions drafted by pro se plaintiffs are held to 'less stringent standards than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers.'" Shankar v. ACS-GSI, 258 Fed. Appx. 344, 345 (D.C. Cir, 2007) (quoting Greenhill v, Spellings, 482 F.3d 569, 572 (D.C. Cir. 2007»). Plaintiff, however, is a lawyer and an experienced litigant, having pursued the employment discrimination lawsuit in Brookens I, as well as numerous other lawsuits before this Court and the D.C. Circuit.[8]

B. Motion for Summary Judgment

A party is entitled to summary judgment if the pleadings on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ, P. 56(c). Material facts

CiL 1980); In re Brookens, No. 04-145 (D.D.C. Mar. 9, 2004); Brookens v. Local I2 AFGE, AFL-CIO, No. 01-1366 (D.D.C. Mar. 28, 2002); Brookens v. Binion, No. 98-838 (D.D.C. are those that "might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law." Anderson v. Liberty Lobby. Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986). The party seeking summary judgment bears the initial burden of demonstrating the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317,322 (1986). In considering whether there is a triable issue of fact, the Court must draw all reasonable inferences in favor of the non-moving party. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 255. The party opposing a motion for summary judgment, however, "may not rely merely on allegations or denials in its own pleading; rather, its response must...set out specific facts showing a genuine issue for trial." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e)(2). The non-moving party must do more than simply "show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts." Matsushita Elcc. Indus. Co., Ltd. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U,S. 574, 586 (1986). Moreover, "any factual assertions in the movant's affidavits will be accepted as being true unless [the opposing party] submits his own affidavits or other documentary evidence contradicting the assertion." Neal v. Kelly, 963 F.2d 453, 456 (D.C. Cir.1992) (quoting Lewis v, Faulkner, 689 P,2d 100, 102 (7th Cir. 1982)).

Title VII and the ADEA

1. Prima Facie Case

To succeed on a claim of discrimination under Title VII and the ADEA, a plaintiff has the initial burden of establishing a prima facie case of discrimination by showing that "(1) [he] is a member of a protected class; (2) [he] suffered an adverse employment action; and (3) the unfavorable action gives rise to an inference of discrimination." Stella v. Mineta, 284 F.3d 135, 145 (D.C. Cir. 2002); see also McDonnell Douglas Corp. v, Green, 411 U.S. 792, 802 (1973); Carter v. George Washington Univ., 387 F3d 872, 878 (D.C. Cir. 2004) (applying McDonnell Douglas framework to ADEA claims). A prima facie case of retaliation requires a plaintiff to show that "(1) [he] engaged in statutorily protected activity; (2) [he] suffered an adverse employment action; and (3) there is a causal connection between the two." Taylor v. Small, 350 F. 2d 1286, 1292 (D.C. Cir. 2003); see also 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-3(a). Should plaintiff fail to make out a prima facie case with respect to any claim, that claim must be dismissed.

Pursuant to' this standard, to make out a prima facie case of either discrimination or retaliation, plaintiff must show an adverse action, which is defined as "a significant change in employment status, such as hiring, firing, failing to promote, reassignment with significantly different responsibilities, or a decision causing significant change in benefits." Douglas v, Preston, 559 F.3d 549, 552 (D.C. Cir. 2009) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

"An employee suffers an adverse employment action if he experiences materially adverse consequences affecting the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment or future employment opportunities such that a reasonable trier of fact could find objectively tangible harm." Forkkio v, Powell, 306 F 3d 1127, 1131 (D.C Cir. 2002) (citing Brown v. Brody, 199 F 3d 446, 457 (D.C Cir. 1999)) In most cases, a tangible employment action "inflicts direct economic harm." Douglas, 559 F.3d at 552 (quoting Burlington Indus., Inc. v. Ellerth, 524 U.S. 742, 762 (1998)). However, where the alleged significant change in employment status is not obvious, "an employee must go the further step of demonstrating how the decision nonetheless caused such an objectively tangible harm," which requires a court "to consider whether the alleged harm is unduly speculative," Id at 553.

For a retaliation claim, the concept of adverse action is broader than in the discrimination context and "can encompass harms unrelated to employment or the workplace 'so long as a reasonable employee would have found the challenged action materially adverse. '" Rattigan v. Holder, No, 04-2009,2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26495, at *27 (D.D.C. Mar. 30, 2009) (quoting Baloch v. Kempthorne, 550 F. 2d 1191, 1198 n.4 (D,C. Cir. 2008) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted). To be materially adverse, the action must be one that "well might have 'dissuaded a reasonable worker from making or supporting a charge of discrimination." Burlington N. & Santa Fe

Ry. Co. v, White, 548 O.S. 53, 68 (2006) (quoting Rochon v. Gonzales, 438 FJd 1211, 1219 (D.C. Cir. 2006)).

End page 8

2. Pretext

Once a plaintiff establishes a prima facie case, the burden shifts to the defendant to produce evidence that the challenged action was taken for a legitimate, nondiscriminatory reason. See Holcomb v. Powell, 433 F. 2d 889, 896 (D.C. Cir. 2006). Once a defendant has done so, the presumption of discrimination "simply drops out of the picture," and "the plaintiff must show that a reasonable jury could conclude from all of the evidence that the adverse employment decision was made for a discriminatory reason." Id. at 896-97 (citations omitted). "All of the evidence" may include (1) evidence establishing the plaintiff s prima facie case; (2) evidence attacking the employer's proffered explanation for its actions; and (3) any further evidence of discrimination that may be available to the plaintiff, such as independent evidence of discriminatory statements or attitudes on the part ofthe employer.[9] Id. at 897.

[9]As cautioned by the D.C. Circuit in Brady v. Office of the Sergeant at Arms, 520 F.3d 490,494 (D.C. CIL 2008), when reviewing a motion for summary judgment in a discrimination case, a district court need not - and should not - evaluate a plaintiff's prima facie showing where a defendant sets forth a legitimate, nondiscriminatory reason for its conduct. Brady v. Office of the Sergeant at Arms, 520 F3d 490, 494 (D.C. Cir. 2008).

II. PLAINTIFF'S CLAIMS

Applying these standards, the Court will now turn to plaintiffs claims. With respect to Plaintiff's claims regarding the denials of a 60-day detail in March 2007 and then again in May 2007 and a detail in August 2007 and the denial of desk audits in May and December 2007,defendant argues that it is entitled to dismissal because these denials do not constitute an adverse action, or in the alternative, summary judgment should be entered because plaintiff has failed to rebut defendant's legitimate, nondiscriminatory reasons for these denials.

With respect to plaintiff's claims regarding defendant's failure to promote him on two occasions to the Chief of Trade Policy and Negotiations Division, which is a GS-1S Supervisory International Economist position, and defendant's denial of a WGI in December 2007, defendant argues that it is entitled to summary judgment because plaintiff has failed to

Instead, the court must look to whether the plaintiff has "produced sufficient evidence for a reasonable jury to find that the employer's asserted non-discriminatory reason was not the actual reason and that the employer intentionally discriminated against [the plaintiff]." Id. (citations omitted); Jones v. Bernanke, 557 F.3d 670, 678 (D.C. Cir. 2009) (applying same principles to retaliation claims).

cast doubt on defendant's nondiscriminatory explanation that plaintiff lacked the necessary qualifications for a promotion to this position, and he could not qualify for a WGI due to his deficient performance rating.

In response, plaintiff essentially takes the position that the Court should stay ruling on the motion for summary judgment since he has not had the chance to take discovery and that he should be able to get statistical data as to defendant's policy and practices relating to "hiring, promotion, desk audits, step increases, grade increases, performance evaluation and firing practices." (Pl.'s Mot. to Stay at 2.) In his reply, plaintiff also argues that the allegations of his complaint are satisfactory since desk audits and details "fall in the Court's definition of adverse employment actions," (see Pl.'s Reply at 4), and that summary judgment should be denied on the grounds that he has satisfied the requirements of Fed, R, Civ, P. 56(f). (Id. at 3.) In particular, plaintiff asserts that he expects "that discovery will be able to disclose genuine issues of material fact" (id. at 2), and in particular, in his affidavit, he claims that discovery will reveal, inter alia, that he was the victim of discrimination and retaliation, that the reasons for the various actions by defendant are false, that plaintiff was qualified for the two positions, that he was treated less favorably than younger white employees, and that there is a history of race and age discrimination at the DOL/ILAB. (See Affidavit of Benoit Brookens in Support of Motion to Stay and Discovery [Brookens Aff.] paras. 6-14.) As discussed more fully herein, the Court is persuaded that defendant is entitled to dismissal of the claims relating to the denials of the desk audits and the details and to summary judgment on all claims on the grounds that plaintiff has offered no rebuttal to defendant's legitimate, non-discriminatory explanations for its actions nor is he entitled to Rule 56(f) discovery.

A. Denial of Detail and Desk Audit Requests

In his reply, plaintiff claims, without explanation, that "a desk audit and detail fall in the Court's definition of adverse employment action:" (Pl.'s Reply at 4.) But in his complaint, plaintiff alleges that a detail to the position of Trade Policy and Negotiations Division Chief would have "provided] him training, experience and promotional or advancement opportunities" and, likewise, that a desk audit would have "assess[ed] his competence and performance for purposes of promotional or advancement opportunities." (Compl. para.16(e), (f).) Even assuming the truth ofthese allegations, as one must at this stage, plaintiff's claims as to the denial of desk audits and details do not constitute adverse employment actions, and thus, he cannot establish a prima facie case for either discrimination or retaliation. Paced with similarly vague and speculative assertions, the D.C. Circuit has held that the denial of a detail does not constitute an adverse action. See Maramark v, Spellings, No. 06~5099, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 22545, at *2 (D.C. Cir. Sept. 20, 2007) (denial of a five-month detail that might have allowed plaintiff to secure a permanent position was "too speculative to constitute an objectively tangible harm" (citation and internal quotation marks omittedj); Stewart v. Evans, 275 P.3d 1126, 1135 (D.C. Cir. 2002) (denial of "acting" designation cannot be considered an adverse employment action because "this type of temporary designation is not one of the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment contemplated by Title VII"); Taylor v. FDIC, 132 F.3d 753, 764 (D.C. Cir. 1997) (repeated failure to designate plaintiffs as acting section chief when their superiors temporarily left the office is insufficient to constitute an adverse employment action); see also Nichols v. Truscott, 424 F. Supp. 2d 124, 136-37 (D,D.C. 2006) (the denial of requests for detail assignments and requests to serve as Acting Branch Chief did not constitute adverse employment action). Similarly, the Fifth Circuit has found that the denial of a desk audit is "not an actionable 'adverse personnel action' under Title VI!." Dollis v. Rubin, 77 F.3d 777, 782 (5th Cir. 1995); see also Douglas, 559 F. 2d at 553 (department head's failure to recommend employee for a Presidential Rank Award did not constitute adverse employment action);

Edwards v, EPA, 456 F, Supp. 2d 72, 86 (D.D.C. 2006) ("[T]o be adverse, the denial of a travel or training opportunity must have a discernible, as opposed to a speculative, effect on the terms, conditions, or privileges of one's employment."). This result does not change under the more lenient standard set forth in White for retaliation claims. For, as noted in White, the anti-retaliation provision protects an individual not from all retaliation, but from retaliation that produces an injury or harm." 548 U.S. at 67. Here, plaintiff does not allege any injury or harm resulting from these denials, and whether any materially adverse consequences could have resulted from these denials is mere speculation.[10]

End page 12

Sewell v. Chao, 532 F. Supp. 2d 126, 137 (D.D.C. 2008) (denial of training and transfer to another department did not constitute adverse employment actions for purposes of a retaliation claim), aff'd sub [10]In fact, neither a detail nor a desk audit would have qualified plaintiff for the position of Chief of the Trade Policy and Negotiations Division, which he sought in March and July 2007. A temporary detail in March, May, or August 2007 or a desk audit in Mayor December 2007 simply would not have enabled plaintiff to meet the time-in-grade requirement under merit staffing procedures or the one-year specialized experience requirement under delegated examining procedures. See Section II(B) infra, Moreover, the first vacancy announcement (ILAB 07-068) was cancelled by defendant in April 2007, before plaintiff made either desk audit request, and the second vacancy announcement (ILAB 07-157) was filled prior to plaintiffs second desk audit request. (See First Witt Decl. para. 14(k), 16.) Thus, neither desk audit request could have had any impact on plaintiff's consideration for the position in the first vacancy announcement, and the second request could not have impacted his consideration for the position in the second vacancy announcement.

nom. Sewell v. Hugler, No. 08-5079, 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 4136 (D.C. Cir. Feb. 25, 2009) (per curiam). Moreover, even if plaintiff could make out a prima facie case of discrimination or retaliation on the basis of the denials of details and desk audits, he has failed to rebut the legitimate reasons defendant has proffered for the denial of the details and the December 2007 desk audit. Specifically, with respect to the details, Gregory K. Schoepfle, the Director of the Office of Trade and Labor Affairs in ILAB, states that after the retirement of the then Chief of the Trade Policy and Negotiations Division in December 2006, he designated his Deputy Director, Carlos Romero, a GS-15 Supervisory International Economist, to serve as acting chief of the division until the position could be permanently filled, (Schoepfle Decl. para. 5.) Thus, Mr. Romero concurrently served in both positions until the division chief position was filled in September 2007, (Id.) While Mr. Romero took a two-week vacation in August 2007, Mr. Schoepfle states that he, as office director, supervised the activities of the division during that time. (Id. para. 8.) Accordingly, because no detail opportunities were available when plaintiff made his requests, Mr. Schoepfle denied them. (Id. paras. 6-8.) Plaintiff has offered no evidence to contradict these assertions or to otherwise raise an inference that the reasons offered by Mr. Schoepfle were pretextual.

Moreover, with respect to the December 2007 desk audit request, Mr. Wedding, plaintiff's supervisor at the time, indicates that plaintiff requested the desk audit the day after the denial of his WGI, which in turn was based on his most recent performance rating of "Minimally Satisfactory" and subsequent performance deficiencies. (See Declaration of Timothy J. Wedding [Wedding Decl.] paras. 5-6; Def.'s Ex. A, Brookens v. Dep't of Labor, MSPB No. DC-531 D-08-0302-1-1, at 7 (May 1,2008); see also First Witt Decl. para. 18.) Mr. Wedding states that he denied the request because he "did not believe there had been any significant material changes to [plaintiff's] position" and because plaintiff performed significantly less work than other International Economists." (Wedding Decl. para.7.) "An employer is entitled to rely on his perception of an employee's work performance." Vasilevsky v, Reno, 31 F. Supp. 2d 143, 149 D.D.C. 1998). Plaintiff has made no effort to dispute these assertions, even though they involve matters clearly within his knowledge. Accordingly, even if plaintiff has established prima facie case, defendant would still be entitled to summary judgment with respect to the denial of plaintiff's detail and December 2007 desk audit requests.

B. Failure to Promote

Plaintiff alleges that defendant's failure to select him for the Chief of the Trade Policy and Negotiations Division position posted first in vacancy announcement ILAB 07-068DE/M and again in vacancy announcement ILAB 07 . 157DE/M was the result of discrimination and retaliation for his protected activity. In response, defendant moves for summary judgment on the basis that plaintiff was unqualified for both of these positions.

To support its claim, defendant submits the declaration of Ericka Witt, the Human Resources Specialist who was responsible for staffing both vacancy announcements. Ms. Witt indicates that the position, which was for a GS-15 Supervisory International Economist, was announced under delegated examining (DE) and merit staffing (MS) procedures.[11] (First Witt Decl. paras. 5,6.) She explains these procedures as follows: Vacancies at Grade OS-12 and higher that are in the competitive service and are advertised under MS appointment are subject to a time-in-grade eligibility requirement pursuant to which the applicant must have 52 weeks of experience at the next lower GS grade level, in this case OS-14. (Id. para. 10.) While vacancies filled under DE procedures do not contain this time-in-grade requirement, applicants must meet both basic requirements and specialized experience criteria listed in the Office of Personnel Management's Individual Occupational

[11]Ms. Witt explains that "DE" refers to the type of appointment used for the general public to apply to competitive service vacancies, while "MS" refers to the type of appointment by which federal employees apply to vacancy announcements in either the competitive service or excepted service. (First Witt Decl. para. 7, 10.) However, federal employees may apply under either DE or MS procedures or both. (Id. para. 11.)

Requirements. (Id. para. 17.) Specialized requirements for GS-13 and higher positions in the GS-110 Economist series require candidates to possess one year of specialized experience equivalent to the next lower grade level, in this case GS-14. (Id.para. 9.)

Ms. Witt states that plaintiff applied under DE and MS procedures for vacancy announcement ILAB 07-068 and under DE procedures for vacancy announcement ILAB 07-157. (Id para. 12.) He was neither certified nor were his application materials forwarded to the selecting official for consideration in either case.[12] (See id. paras.14(d), (j), 15(d).) With respect to the ILAB

[12]Ms. Witt states that she received 12 applications for vacancy announcement ILAB 07- 068DE and six applications for vacancy announcement ILAB 07-068M. (First Witt Decl. 14(c).) Based on her review, she certified three of the candidates under DE procedures and sent their applications to the selecting official for consideration. Two others met the cut-off score but were not certified; four applicants did not meet the cut-off score; and three applicants, including plaintiff, were deemed unqualified. (Id. para. 14(d).) Ms. Witt does not indicate whether she certified any applicants under MS procedures. She indicates that she received 12 applications for vacancy announcement ILAB 07-157DE. Based on her review, she certified four of the candidates and sent their applications to the selecting official for consideration. Eight applicants, including plaintiff, were deemed unqualified, (Id para 15(d).)

07-068 vacancy announcement, Ms. Witt indicates that she determined that plaintiff, a GS-12 employee, was not qualified under the DE appointment criteria because he did not possess one year of specialized experience equivalent to the GS-14 level. (Id. paras. 14(f)-(i).) She explains that plaintiff's adjunct teaching experience, which he contends qualifies him "for higher level promotional and advancement opportunities" (Cornpl. ~ 160»), was not sufficient to satisfy the specialized experience requirement. (Id. paras. 14(g), 15(g) and Attach 1.) Similarly. Ms. Witt determined that plaintiff was unqualified for the ILAB 07-068 position under the MS appointment criteria because he did not have 52 weeks of time-in-grade experience at the GS-14 level.[13] (Id para. 14j).)

[13]Plaintiff appears to suggest that defendant's ulterior motive for cancelling vacancy announcement ILAB 07-068 was to avoid hiring him, (See Compl. paras. 29-40.) Defendant, however, has established that plaintiff was unqualified while several others applicants did meet the requirements of the position. Moreover, defendant has provided a nondiscriminatory explanation for cancelling the vacancy, which plaintiff has failed to rebut Specifically, Mr. Schoepfle, who was the selecting officer, indicates that after reviewing the Certificate of Eligibles for the position, which did not include plaintiffs name, he decided to cancel the posting with the intention of redescribing the skill and experience questions and thereafter reposting the position in order to attract a more diverse candidate pool. (See Schoepfle Decl. para. 3.) Summary judgment is appropriate when an employer cancels a vacancy for legitimate, nondiscriminatory reasons. See e.g., Lester v. Natsios, 290 F. Supp. 2d 11,26 (D,D.C. 2003) (granting summary judgment when "defendant has convincingly explained that the vacancy was cancelled because the responsible manager wanted to recast the position differently, as to both its grade and function. Plaintiff offers no rebuttal of this explanation, nor does she cast any doubt on its validity."); Carter v. Pena, 14 F. Supp. 2d 1,6 (D.D.C. 1997)

Likewise, Ms. Witt determined that plaintiff was unqualified for the ILAB 07-157 position under the DE appointment criteria for the same reason that he was unqualified for the ILAB 07-068 position - - he did not possess one year of specialized experience at the GS-14 level. (Id" 15(e), (g)-(j).) Ms. Witt indicates that Mr. Wedding "was selected from the certificate of eligibles for vacancy announcement ILAB 07-157M." (Id. para. 16.) This explanation more than satisfies the DOL's burden of articulating a legitimate,nondiscriminatory reason for its failure to promote plaintiff to the position in response to either of these vacancy announcements. Accordingly, plaintiff was required to set forth evidence that "could allow a reasonable trier of fact to conclude that [defendant's] proffered reasonls] [were] a pretext for discrimination." Paquin v, Fed. Nat 'l Mortgage Ass 'n, 119 F 3d 23, 27-28 (D.C Cir. 1997). Plaintiff, however, has made no attempt to rebut defendant's reason. In his complaint, plaintiff alleges that Mr. Wedding had "lesser qualifications in 'trade policy and negotiations'" than plaintiff and that Mr. Wedding, in order "to perform the duties of the position, was in need of formal and informal training" by plaintiff and others. (Compl para. 41,-42.) However, plaintiff has not

("[P]laintiff failed to establish a prima facie case because no one was ever hired for the vacant position, and the vacancy was ultimately canceled."), aff'd, 1998 WL 315616, at *1 (D,C. Cir. Apr. 8, 1998).

presented any evidence to refute defendant's showing that plaintiff did not satisfy the requirements for the position.[14]
Thus, because plaintiff "has produced no direct evidence of discriminatory [or retaliatory] animus by the decisionmaker and failed to produce any other evidence that discredits the underlying reason" for his failure to be selected, defendant is entitled to summary judgment on these claims. Baloch v. Kempthorne, 550 F.3d 1191, 1198 (D.C. Cir. 2008).

C. Denial of WGI

Plaintiff also alleges that he was subjected to discrimination based on his race and age and to retaliation based on his prior EEO activity when he was denied a WGI in December 2007, Defendant responds by arguing that plaintiffs WGI was properly withheld because his most recent rating of record at the time was "Minimally Satisfactory," which evidenced less than satisfactory performance, (See Schoepfle

[14]In Brookens 1, this Court also found that plaintiff could not show pretext for defendant's. failure to promote him to the position of a GS-14/GS-15 Deputy Director of the Office of International Relations, which was advertised under MS procedures, because he failed to meet the time-in-grade requirement for the job, since he did not possess the required 52 weeks of time- in-grade experience at the GS-14 level, This finding was affirmed on appeal and is equally binding here as to the position advertised in the ILAB 07-068 vacancy announcement, since plaintiff also applied for that position under MS appointment criteria.

Decl. paras. 10-11; Wedding Decl. para. 5; First Witt Decl., para. 18.)

Plaintiffs overall "Minimally Satisfactory" performance rating was based on the "needs to improve" rating that he had received on element 4 of his performance standards[15] (Def.ts Ex, A, Brookens v, Dep't of Labor, MSPB No. DC-531 0-08-0302-1-1, at 2 (May 1, 2008).) According to Mr. Wedding, he denied plaintiffs WGI based on his deficient performance of element 4 as evidenced by his performance rating and on perceived subsequent performance deficiencies, including plaintiff's alleged continued unwillingness to accept additional assignments. (See id.; Wedding Decl, para. 5.) Mr. Schoepfle indicates that he upheld the denial of plaintiffs WGI on a similar basis, (See Schoepfle Decl. para. 11 (stating that he upheld the denial of plaintiffs WGI "because he failed to achieve at least 'Meets' performance in a critical element of his performance evaluation plan").

A rating of "Minimally Satisfactory" indicates that the employee "[n]eed[s] to improve [15]Takes on assignments given, and assumes other responsibilities as work schedule permits and with supervisor's approval. Otherwise works cooperatively and effectively with colleagues in ILAB and in the broader community of stakeholders to promote the mission and strategic objectives of the Bureau.

performance for one or more elements," (See Schoepfle Decl., Attach. 1) Element 4 was:

Pursuant to regulations governing WGIs:

An employee paid at less than the maximum rate of the grade of his or her position shall earn advancement in pay to the next higher step of the grade or the next higher rate within the grade ... upon meeting the following ... requirements established by law:

(a) The employee's performance must be at an acceptable level of competence. ... To be determined at an acceptable level of competence, the employee's most recent rating of record ...shall be at least Level 3 ("Fully Successful" or equivalent).

5 C.F.R. § 531 404(a); see also 5 U.S,C. § 5335(a)(B) (providing for periodic within grade step increases for federal employees provided that "the work of the employee is of an acceptable level of competence as determined by the head of the agency"). Accordingly, because plaintiff was found not to be performing at an acceptable level of competence, defendant claims that his WGI was properly denied.

By articulating a legitimate nondiscriminatory reason for its denial of plaintiff's WGI, defendant has satisfied its burden. Once again, however, plaintiff makes no attempt to refute defendant's rationale. Instead, he claims that he needs discovery in order to respond. This claim is especially hollow with respect to the denial of his WGL This issue was fully litigated before the MSPB, where plaintiff and defendant, both of whom were represented by counsel, introduced evidence. (See Def 's Ex, A, Brookens v. Dep' of Labor, MSPB No. DC-531D-08-0302-I-I, at 5-7,11-12 (May 1,2008) (rejecting plaintiffs claim of discrimination and retaliation with respect to the WGI based on a record that included testimony by plaintiff and other DOL employees and documentary evidence).) Given these circumstances, plaintiff's refrain that he needs discovery before he can offer any rebuttal to defendant's evidence cannot be sustained. Defendant, therefore, is entitled to summary judgment on this claim.

D. Rule 56(1) Request for Discovery

As he did in Brookens I, plaintiff attempts to stave off summary judgment by invoking Rule 56(f), and he also moves to stay the proceeding on the ground that he needs discovery to obtain "statistical data as to Defendant's hiring, promotion, desk audits, step increases, grade increases, performance evaluation and firing practices." (Pl.'s Mot. to Stay at 2; see also Brookens Aff. ,r5.) In addition, plaintiff avers that discovery will enable him to prove his case by revealing discrimination and retaliation in the DOL's treatment of plaintiff, as well as the lack of black supervisors and professionals and a history of discrimination in ILAB.[16] (See Brookens Aff., paras. 6-14.)

While summary judgment ordinarily "is proper only after the plaintiff has been given adequate time for discovery," First Chicago Int'l v. United Exch. Co., 836 F.2d 1375, 1380 (D.C. Cir. 1988), under Rule 56(£), a party opposing a summary judgment motion must "show[] by affidavit that, for specified reasons, it cannot present facts essential to justify its opposition," In this regard, the opponent of summary judgment must provide the "requisite specificity" to justify his request for discovery. See Brookens v. Solis, No. 08-5527 (D.C. Cir, May 8, 20(9) (citing [16]Plaintiff also points to various "unresolved factual discrepancies," which he claims could be resolved through discovery. The alleged discrepancies involve (1) a Certificate of Eligibles pursuant to which plaintiff was deemed eligible in July 2004 for a OS-14 position as a policy analyst with another federal agency; (2) the selection of Anne Zollner, "a non-economist, younger white female" as the successor to Timothy Wedding as Chief of the Trade Policy and Negotiations Division; and (3) the promotion of Mr. Wedding, "a younger white male," to Deputy Director of the Office of Trade and Labor Affairs, (Opp'n at 2.) However, none of these personnel actions is at issue in this case. Moreover, plaintiff did not apply for either of the two ILAB vacancies he mentions. (See Declaration of Ericka C. Witt, dated April, 2009 ["Second Witt Decl.] para. 4-7.) Although plaintiff does complain here about his failure to be considered or selected for the division chief position that Ms. Zollner obtained, his complaint concerns earlier vacancy announcements, and he does not allege that Ms. Zollner failed to meet the agency's requirements for the position. Thus, these personnel actions are irrelevant.

Messina v. Krakower, 439 F.3d 755, 762 (D.C. Cir. 2006) ("A party making a Rule 56(f) request must state[] concretely why additional discovery is needed to oppose a motion for summary judgment.") (citation and internal quotation marks omitted»; Byrd v. EPA, 174 F.3d 239, 248 n.8 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (party seeking discovery bears the burden of identifying the facts to be discovered that would create a triable issue and reasons why the party cannot acquire those facts without discovery to challenge a motion for summary judgment); Strang v. u.s. Arms Control & Disarmament Agency, 864 F.2d 859, 861 (D.C. Cir. 1989) (plaintiff must "state with sufficient particularity ... why discovery [is] necessary). Plaintiff has again failed to meet this standard despite having been told of the requirements of Rule 56(f) in Brookens, I and having been reminded by the Court's Fox/Neal Order of January 6, 2009, of the need to provide evidence to contradict defendant's assertions in its affidavits. As an initial matter, the lack of discovery has no relevance to defendant's arguments under Rule 12(b)(6). And, as to defendant's summary judgment arguments, plaintiff fails to provide sufficient particularity to justify his request for discovery. Instead, he presents conclusory assertions that amount to nothing more than a claim that he could prove his case if only he were permitted discovery. Nor has he shown how the laundry list of statistical data that he seeks would undercut defendant's explanations for its actions.[17] Moreover, the matters at issue involve matters that are within plaintiffs knowledge to dispute, so there is no excuse for his failure to offer any rebuttal to defendant's evidence.

For these reasons, there is nothing to suggest that plaintiffs vague request for discovery would result in his being able to create a triable issue of fact. Therefore, the Court will deny plaintiffs motion for a stay and his Rule 56(f) request for discovery.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court will grant defendant's motion to dismiss complaint

[17]Plaintiff's reliance on Fitzgerald v. Henderson, 251 F.3d 345 (2d Cir. 2001), is unavailing. In that case, the plaintiff sought recovery for discriminatory conduct that occurred outside the applicable limitations period under the "continuing violation theory," which, according to the district court, required plaintiff to show a "formal policy or that discrimination was 'widespread.'" 251 F.3d at 362. In those circumstances, the Second Circuit held that "[f]aulting [plaintiff] for failure to make a showing of a formal policy - - or of other matters that would similarly be beyond her knowledge - - was incompatible with the court's denial of discovery." Id. In this case, however, there is no allegation that any of the discrete acts of discrimination alleged by plaintiff are untimely. Thus, the continuing violation theory is irrelevant here.

or in the alternative for summary judgment and will deny plaintiff's motion to stay. A separate Order accompanies this Memorandum Opinion.
